(9) Failure to comply with the requirements of subsection (6) or (7) does not, of itself, render a consent to adoption or transfer of guardianship invalid.

(10) A consent to adoption validly executed in another jurisdiction is deemed to have been executed pursuant to this Act.

(11) A birth parent under 18 years of age may give a consent to the adoption of a child or a transfer of guardianship pursuant to this Act, and that consent to adoption or transfer of guardianship is as valid as if that person were 18 years of age.

(2.2) The court may, on an application without notice, dispense with the requirement to give notice to a person who is or may be a birth parent of the child if the court is satisfied that dispensing with that requirement:

- (a) is necessary to protect the mental or physical health or safety of a person;
- (b) is in the best interests of the child; or
- (c) is necessary in the circumstances of the case.

(3) If the court dispenses with a transfer of guardianship pursuant to subsection (1), guardianship of the child is vested in the agency to whom guardianship was transferred by one of the birth parents.

(4) Where the court refuses to dispense with the requirement of consent to an adoption or a transfer of guardianship pursuant to subsection (1), the court:

- (a) shall give directions as to the custody of the child; and
- (b) may make any further order that it considers appropriate in the circumstances.

(b) after the expiry of the period described in clause (a), at any time prior to the child being placed for adoption pursuant to section 14.

(4) In the case of an agency adoption where no application is made pursuant to subsection (3) by a birth parent, the agency shall make an application pursuant to section 6 of The Children's Law Act, 1997 as soon as is practicable.

(5) Prior to an order of adoption being made, the court may, having regard to the child's best interests, allow a child who has consented to be adopted to revoke the consent.
